“I tried to buy a similar product of another company that uses some changes on the accessories, big mistake!!!”

My own testimony in favor of your product insect-screen Zeroquattro goes a bit counter current, in fact I made a serious mistake in the previous months. I tried to buy a similar product of another company that uses some changes on the accessories, big mistake !!!

In fact, the product that was presented as the best and replacement of your, has failed soon the expectations. The main problem that has occurred was consumed after a few uses of the lower thread up to break it.

So, now I'm sure to buy only original products made by those who have the technical expertise to implement an innovative product like your insect-screen.

I apologize again for thinking that all insect-screens are the same and I will continue to propose only yours, with always more satisfaction, my and of my customers, for an excellent product.

I hope this my experience can be of assistance to prevent others to do the same mistake.

In my site there are photos of work done with your insect-screen that are a great advertising to make it clear what we are talking about and the potential that the product offers.

KELEGENT

“Their systems could withstand the west facing heavy winds in India and could also function well on high rise buildings facing towards the sea in Mumbai”

We are using DFM pleated systems for the Indian market. We were always concerned about having a good system for Indian conditions because the frequency of use is high and the tropical conditions along with dust make it a very challenging job. With over years of experience in screening, we have developed a very good and elite customer base. Keeping all these factors in mind we wanted a very strong and robust system. Dfm provided us the right solution their screens. Their systems could withstand the west facing heavy winds in India and could also function well on high rise buildings facing towards the sea in Mumbai. Recently we took up a project in Pune which included large screens approximately 6m wide and 3 meters high. We conveniently completed the project and also got several high end referrals. So if the system is fabricated with their guidelines and machines, I am sure it will suit most of the regions. This increased my confidence in DFM and I can proudly say that we are associated with a company with over 40 years of experience in pleated screens. So Team DFM keep up the good work. Cheers !

“Since we started working with the pleated insect-screens we never had more calls for repairs warranty.”

Thanks to its small size of only 22 mm., the Zeroquattro can be installed easily on any door or window, if necessary, also being able to encase the profiles, making it totally hidden. The free movement of the release of the pleated net in the lower guide (in case of wind or shock) is exceptional because it avoids breakdown or accident. A simple movement of open and close of the insect-screen and the pleated net returns collected and will be repositioned immediately on the bottom rail. Indicated especially in presence of children in the house. With a different kind of guide, like “hidden” or “wagon-armed” (plastic chain) the pleated net would be broken. Here in Costa Rica we also managed to close terraces without the use of frames, but only with the Zeroquattro central opening with the windbreak (Frangivento). Insect-screens that have served to keep out the terrace insects that here there are so many, but also bats and birds. Now the owner of the apartment was able to remove the problem of having to cover all the furniture in the terrace every night and every time she left the house. The pleated net is much more visible than the flat one of the rolling insect screens. Avoid accidents due to network too transparent, prevents people will walk in the middle. Very useful the absence of springs that make “back” or “rewind” unexpected the insect-screen especially in large dimensions. I can open only a small space of the insect-screen without keep the handle-bar. Thanks to the plastic angle that allows you to recover a not square surface up to 2 cm., have helped us to solve big problems out of not square walls. And especially ... since we started working with the pleated insect-screens we never had more calls for repairs “warranty”. As installers we forgot to call for complaints or for maintenance. Only satisfied customers!
